9 A. M.—Everything last night was bustle and activity, as to-day was the time fixed for cross in the river. During the night the pontoons were conveyed to the river, and the artillery of one hundred and forty three pieces placed in position opposite. At five o'clock this morning the rebels fired two signal guns, and during the latter part of the night rockets were frequently seen within their lines.

When the bridges were about half completed, the enemy opened a murderous fire of infantry from the houses on the river banks. Up to this time not a shot had been fired from our side. The engineers were driven from the bridges, and several killed and wounded.

At aix o'clock Gen. Burnside ordered all the guns to be opened on the city. The capponede

Sr. Louis, Dec. 11.—Gea. Blunt telegraphs Gen. Cartis that the rebels with whom he fought the battle of Frairie Grove, near Fayetteville, Arkansas, have probably crossed the Arkansas river. The enemy left all of his wounded and most of his dead on the field. One hundred of their wounded have died since the battle, and a

The Sam Jacimto in Pursuit of the Resolved, That the notice of emancipation as indicated in the preclamation is not calculated to hasten the restoration of peace, is not well chosen as a war measure, and is an assumption of power dangerous to the rights of citizens and the perpetuity of a free Government.

Mr. Lovejoy moved to lay the resolution on the table. Carried by 94 against 45.

The Alabama went to Martinique, arriving on the 17th of November. The San Jacinto arrived the same afternoon, and finding the Alabama there, went outside to wait for her. On the 18th, at ten o'clock at night, the Alabama escaped. The San Jacinto was still off the harber on the Edd.

A communication was also received from the President answering a resolution of the Sen-ate calling for information and evidence relative to the Indian barbarities in Minnesota

The resolution relative to arbitrary arrests of certain citizens of Delaware was taken up.

Mr. Morrill contended that the resolution as it now stood was not a mere resolution of inquiry, but a charge against the Government and an indictment against the President, and he (Morrill) should vote for no such resolution. He claimed that in this state of war and rebellion, with the land full of traitors and spies, the Commander in-Chief has the right to arrest such men. No one, not even the Senator from Delaware (Saulabury), has claimed that these men were loyal. There had been many arrests made, and the proper presumption is

At a signal all opened on the city. The fire was terrible, but the rebel sharpsbooters could not be driven from their hiding places. The shot and shell went through the houses, in many cases setting them on fire, causing a dense sample which, together with the explosion of so large a quantity of powder, almost hid the city rom view.

It became evident that the bridges could not be built except by a bold dash, and volunteers were called for to cross in small boats. The order was no sooner given than hundreds stepped forward; but as all could not go, about one hundred were selected. They were soon on their way, while the artilliery threw a perfect storm of iron hall on the opposite bank. They reached the opposite shore, but not without loss. With fixed beyonets they rushed upon the screen of iron hall on the opposite bank. They reached the opposite shore, who were safely landed on this side.

At half past four two bridges were finished opposite the city, when the troops immediately began to cross over. The enemy were soon driven from the city back to their line of works.

The two bridges in front of Gen. Franklin were successfully laid early in the day, but his troops did not cross until the two appearones were ready.

A sufficient force is now on the opposite side of the river to resist any attack that is likely to be made. The rebels fired but few guns in the morning, and none in the afternoon, although their works were in easy range.

During the forencon the rebels burnt the railroad bridge outside of the city. Between thirty and forty houses were burnt, mostly in the business part of the city.

During the day between eight thousand and nine thousand rounds of ammunition were fired by our artillery.

Everything is quiet to night. The indications are that a battle will be fought to-morrow.

Casualities at the Battle of Frairie Grove, near Fayetteville, Arkansas, have probably crossed the Arkansas river. The enemy left all of his wounded and most of his dead on the field. One hundred of the country was lost the rights of any citizen? Does any one pretend that he has not done what he thought was best to suppress this rebellion and preserve the country, or that he has not done what he thought was best to suppress this rebellion and preserve the country, or that he has not done what he thought was best to suppress this rebellion and preserve the country, or that he has willfully violated the rights of any citizen?
